What is a ...

Certified Home Health Aide

Home health aides provide basic personal care to patients, many of whom are elderly or disabled. They do not provide any type of medical care. Primarily, they assist with bathing, dressing and other hygiene needs, in addition to preparing meals and helping patients eat. They may perform light housekeeping duties such as laundry, in addition to grocery shopping and providing transportation.

Certified Nursing Assistant

Like home health aides, CNAs often help patients feed, bathe and dress themselves. They also help patients change positions while in bed and help them move from their beds to wheelchairs. In addition, they listen to patients' health concerns, noting symptoms or changes in patients' conditions in their charts. They also monitor patients' vital signs and report this information to doctors or nurses. CNAs often act as the primary caregivers and have more contact with patients than anyone else on staff, including nurses.

**Individuals interested in applying for the Health Train program must fill out an application at EOC, attend an information session and participate in a pre-screening interview with the selection committee.*
